BROUILLY FROM ALL ANGLES

Our ambition in creating this journey is to give you a complete picture of the beauty of the Mont Brouilly. If its altitude is not very high, its slopes are beautiful. This site is part of the charter of Fontevraud, which includes the most beautiful wine hills of France. It will offer you breathtaking landscapes. The diorite, also called blue stone of Brouilly, of which it is constituted, gives it a geological peculiarity which justifies its registration as Geosite of the possible classification of Beaujolais in the Geoparks of UNESCO. This Tour is supported by the various authorities of Brouilly as well as the different institutions representing our Republic. The six communes of the Brouilly vintage will open their doors. The many cellars throughout the circuit will always be happy to receive you. You can admire nine castles among which, the Castle of La Palud, which saw the visit of King Louis XI, or the castle Arginy, where you can dream of the Treasures of the Templars and the Golden Calf which, according to legend, is buried on this site. Two BPF are very close, Beaujeu and Vaux in Beaujolais. A single pass, the Col de Brouilly, but a tangle of small roads, all more beautiful than the other, will allow you all possible approaches to access the chapel of Our Lady of Raisins located at 484 meters above sea level. The scenery that awaits you at the top will give you a view of the Val de Saône, Dombes, Bugey and further afield the Alps and Mont Blanc. Do not be pretentious and believe that you will need patience to climb the steep slopes of this mountain six times. Some call the Beaujolais, the French Tuscany, and our region deserves to stop there to be discovered for its geography as well as for its gastronomy, not to mention its wine that will delight your taste buds. So indulge yourself in the effort of cycling and comfort yourself in our tableware
